

GOULD'S CLERCHED PRISONER,
Complaint Dismissed, Officer Being Drunk at Time of Making Complaint."

When the morning watch had been called at the Tomb yesterday Policeman Delaney left from Sergeant James's private room. Policeman John Gould of the Church street station, whose face was flushed, and who staggered as he walked. Another policeman led out of the prisoners' box Patrick Curran, whose hand was bound up with blood-stained bandages. Gould made so faint that Curran had fired two pistol shots at him.

"I am not guilty," said Curran. "I never had a pistol in my life, and turning to the people I said, 'You will see a man you want to pay to bring me here."

"This man tried to shoot me, Judge," said Gould. "I never saw him before."

"Where is the pistol?" asked the magistrate. "I don't know," said Gould. "He must have thrown it away." Gould further said that he found Curran fighting in the street. He went up to him and asked him what he was doing there. This policeman at that moment in the morning, he said, was surprised to have shared some information laid before the Mayor, with whom he is intimate.

The two policemen, comprising Messrs. Schenckman, Harkness, and Bell, have caused the following to be sent to Beecher:

BEECHER AND THE SCHOOL BOARD,
Has he Proof of Red-tapism Approaching Gross Immorality?

The attack made by Beecher in his Sunday morning sermon upon the Board of Education in Brooklyn in insinuating that the members of the Board, through whom the public school teachers secure places, make the "loss of virtue the condition of giving a place," has aroused much indignation on the part of the members of the Board, as well as on the part of many of the school teachers. The charges pronounced false to the old members of the present Board and to the fourteenth members Mayor Low has just retired. Some of the members who have been dismissed by the Mayor, who were of some of the oldest and most experienced of their colleagues, connect the particular of their colleagues' assertion, as the Plymouth teacher is supposed to have shared some information laid before the Mayor, with whom he is intimate.
